OVERVIEW

The National Hispanic Institute has a momentous 2022, bringing more students into in-person programs than it had the previous year. NHI offered five Great Debate programs, five LDZ programs (including the online LDZx) and two CWS programs – in all, 1167 participants developed as leaders through the programs, making up the biggest cohort since the pre-pandemic threshold achieved in 2019.

It was a year of superlatives, with the Dominican Republic sending a large and impressive contingent of students, with a new Great Debate debuting in California, with first-time programs in Tennessee and Maryland, with new sponsorships bringing groups of students from Oklahoma, New Mexico and the Las Vegas metro area into our leadership programs — all with an energy that will bring momentum for 2023 and the years to follow.

State Farm, a longtime partner of NHI, provided support for the 2022 Great Debate program fundraising and volunteerism. As it did in 2021, Schreiner University kicked off the NHI summer program season. In 2022, Schreiner had a unique role in hosting two Great Debate programs. Under the guidance of co-educational directors Chris Nieto and Mercedes Mercado, the Texas Great Debate flourished, with teams competing for the Silver Cup.

The Tip of Texas team won its fifth straight title and 10th total – an incredible decima considering the region anchored by Brownsville’s Saint Joseph Academy only started competing in 2011. Tino Villarreal and Jorge Lee once again led a full squad of students through the preparations, highlighting a revived energy around the event. Nearly 170 students converged on Kerrville for Texas Great Debate, with students from El Paso, Houston and San Antonio also earning top individual honors.

The Texas Star Great Debate continued to bring the energy to Kerrville, with another 75 students coming to Schreiner to participate in the first of NHI’s six-day Great Debate programs. Educational director Paola Hernandez led a dedicated staff who provided the first-ever NHI experience for a number of students — mostly from Texas, but a few from as far as California and México City.

The Midwest Great Debate once again allowed Augustana College to open its doors, for the first time since 2019, to a select group of future Latino/a/x leaders from both México and the U.S. On-site director Luis Jauregui, an Augustana graduate himself, declared, “The Midwest Great Debate is not a six-day program, the program ends when you let it end.”

The California Sol Great Debate was at a host institution that’s grown familiar to NHIers — the University of San Diego through the leadership of Minh-Ha Hoang and Stephen Pultz— but this event brought new energy and a cohort of nearly 100 U.S. and México students after being home to an LDZ program last year. Thanks to a partnership with Sands Cares, NHI included a group of Las Vegas-area students into the program to begin their NHI journeys.

The Northeast Great Debate, a longtime staple that returned in 2022, debuted at Saint Francis University in western Pennsylvania through the leadership of Bobby Anderson, Director of Admission.

Educational Director Steven Hernandez guided a program in its 20th year, beginning at Villanova University in 2003 and building on contributions from early investors like Dr. Manuel Recio, former State Director of PA Migrant Education; Steve Merritt, Vice President, Villanova University; Thomas Butler, Philadelphia College Roundtable; and Carmen Sol Cotto, School District of Philadelphia.

The LDZ continued in two formats, including the all-online LDZ program that provides an alternative to the traditional legislative model. Modified further in its second year, the online program — also led by Steven Hernandez— used a non-profit governance model to provide students a platform to learn Community Equity Building and Community Social Entrepreneurship principles.

But, of course, the established LDZ programs continued their impressive runs as NHI returned to in-person programming. The Texas LDZ, hosted by Austin College, commemorated its 40th year as an active NHI experience, drawing nearly 150 students to the immersive learning laboratory, with George Rodriguez and Michelle Saenz-Rodriguez in their customary roles as educational directors. Thanks to funding from Walmart, students from both Texas and Oklahoma participated in the program for its milestone 40th year.

The Colorado LDZ, with more than 30 years of history with NHI, welcomed more than 110 students back to its campus. Connie Jaime-Lujan, Director of Educational Transitions & Support Services at CSU, commented on the excellence of the '22 edition of the program, noting, “It was great to see that next level of interaction and growth, and have the students have the incredible experience that the LDZ offers them. I’ve never seen such a transformational leadership experience for students to really find their voices, find their power, find the importance of networking. And the theme this year with community equity building was so crucial, because our Latinx population has so much to offer.”

Another school instrumental in NHI’s growth into a national and then international entity, the University of New Mexico resumed its partnership with NHI, hosting the Dionisio “Dennis” Chavez New Mexico LDZ exclusively for New Mexico students. More than 100 students converged on the University of New Mexico thanks largely to the efforts of NHI co-founder Gloria de León, who also served as co-educational director for the landmark program alongside NHI founder Ernesto Nieto, who also shared in a co-educational director role.

New Mexico Senate Minority Whip Michael Padilla, an NHI alumnus who participated in the founding New Mexico LDZ class of 1988 (where he was elected Lt. Governor) made possible funding for all New Mexico participants to attend the program as Dennis Chavez Scholars where they received full scholarships to participate. Many thanks go to the University of New Mexico's El Centro de la Raza through the work of Dr. Lawrence Roybal, Rosa Cervantes, and many departments and team members throughout UNM.

The first-of-its-kind American LDZ, hosted by new NHI partner St. Mary’s College of Maryland through the leadership of David Hautenan, convened one of the largest cohorts of the 2022 summer programs for an unforgettable experience. That included a trip to Washington, D.C., where a number of students (thanks to the leadership of NHI Alumna Veronica Morales) got to convene with members of Congress and their staffs and add a new dimension to their immersive public policy experience. Special thanks should go to the U.S. Forest Service and NHI alumnus Oscar Lai for their support to bring students to the program and provide tours of the National Mall.

Finally, NHI held two editions of its capstone Collegiate World Series program. The first was held at University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee, through the sponsorship of the Nicky Hamilton in the president's office, the first year ever that the International CWS ventured to the Mid-South. Students from several states participated, including a large contingency from Houston. Marc Nieto served as the program’s educational director, Rudy Rodriguez as the onsite director, and a number of this summer’s John F. Lopez Fellows played considerable roles in running the program.

The Texas CWS, held at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, brought a returning host institution back into the fold and provided the college preparation and inquiry-based learning introduction for more than 100 students from the U.S., Costa Rica and México.

Special thanks goes to two more sponsors: BakerHostetler, continuing its valued relationship with NHI, TE Connectivity, a new sponsor that will support NHI as it prepares for its 2023 summer programming. NHI would also like to thank the team at lifestyle brand Erin Condren, that partnered with NHI to support Latino artists and culture.

This year, NHI was saddened by the passing of Dr. Arthur Freedman, one of the organization's longest-standing contributors to its curriculum and theory. Dr. Freedman left his book collection on organizational behavior and design to NHI, as well as a generous financial gift.

As we closed out 2022, NHI received gifts from the Weyerhaeuser Foundation, Kristina and Bob Tusini, Allstate, Bluebonnet Electric, a large gift from the Bezos Family Foundation, and many, many more. We are so grateful to all of our sponsors and donors!

PARTICIPANTS & PROGRAMS

The Great Debate is designed for students between their freshman and sophomore years of high school. Billed as both a communications and leadership development program for aspiring young leaders, the Great Debate allows students to develop their public speaking and critical thinking skills. It challenges them to articulate their ideas about social issues relevant to the Latino community in a team setting that requires their best individual performances for success.

The Great Debate is offered in two formats. The four-day structure, utilized by the Texas Great Debate, brings students together to form teams representing cities or regions under the guidance of volunteer coaches. Those students work together for a few weeks or even a few months prior to the competition to hone their skills and to bond with teammates. Most Great Debate programs utilize a six-day format. Students at those programs are drafted into teams at the outset of the program.

In each format, students compete in individual and paired events, accumulating points for their teams based on how they progress through the tournament. The program, while it emphasizes communication skills and competition, also encourages collaboration and teamwork, be in the long-term camaraderie that develops among the Texas Great Debate teams vying for the Silver Cup or the six-day Great Debate, in which teams form shortly after students arrive and must quickly coalesce.

Great Debate students debated the theme: Adopting New Community Social Narratives

The Lorenzo de Zavala Youth Legislative Session, ideally for students between their sophomore and junior years of high school (but also accepting students between their junior and senior year) is an immersive learning experience that delves into public policy.

The original live, in-person version of the program is modeled after a bicameral political system, with a House of Representatives and a Senate as well as an executive branch and a judicial branch.

The LDZ, as NHlers know it, is very much a collaborative experience, with students working together throughout the program, starting by forming political parties and culminating with a three-day legislative session in which collaboration is essential to turning bills into laws. Yet it's also a very individualized program, with students declaring their candidacies for various roles and running for election. Whether students win or lose their races, all find roles within the body and then proceed through the legislative process in those roles.

The latest version of the program, the digitally-delivered LDZx, takes the same principles but translates it to an entrepreneurial business model to highlight two core elements of what NHI teaches about self-sufficient communities. In the LDZx, the structure borrows from government but places a futuristic community spin on the process, with proposals developed by participants and evaluated by students aligning in two chambers: a Community Social Entrepreneurship chamber, looking at short-term viability concerns, including how something can be done, launched, run, and evaluated, and a Community Equity Building chamber, which looks at more long-term concerns like outcomes and how much equity is built into the community as a result of the initiative.

The Collegiate World Series, also digitally delivered as the CWSx, brings two programs in one to students between their junior and senior years of high school. The CWS, as it is known to NHlers, begins with the League Series, a team competition that helps students master aspects of the college application process that includes guidance from university personnel on a range of topics including essay writing and interviews.

The program then moves to the Thought Series, which introduces students to inquiry-based learning, an approach to decision-making and reflective thinking that NHlers are able to utilize throughout college and into their adult lives.

College Register member representatives participate as coaches in the CWSx programs, and also take part in virtual or in-person fairs during the summer, giving NHI students uncrowded access to admission representatives in a one-on-one setting.

The programs are staffed by volunteer junior or senior faculty, many of whom are past participants of the experience. These individuals assist in building the next cohort through outreach and recruitment, volunteer staff development, community organizing, and program implementation and evaluation. NHI works with over 800 volunteers annually to deliver its programs.

RESEARCH FINDINGS

For the fifth straight year, Dr. Joseph Villescas led the NHI Collaborative Research Center (CRC) in assessing the efficacy of NHI's summer programs and the levels of satisfaction students experienced participating in those programs.

According to the report, "these hybrid forms of interpersonal and online leadership training fulfilled participants' needs for social connection and intellectual engagement."

Primary findings from pre- and post-program surveys indicated that:

- The majority of 2022 NHI participants were satisfied with each type of leadership program format and are likely to encourage their peers to experience the GD, LDZ/LDZx, and CWS during the summer of 2023.

- Upon completing the GD, LDZ/LDZx, and CWS, most participants now plan to enroll in the next level of NHI leadership program as well as prioritize volunteer staff opportunities at the 2023 GD, LDZ/LDZx, and CWS.

- Most participants continue to exhibit high levels of volunteerism during their high school careers as well as alongside their parents, and the 45.6% of GD, 56.4% of LDZ/LDZx, and 63.9% of CWS participants provide five or more hours of volunteer services within faith-based, civic, cultural, and NHI domains.

- The majority of this cohort of NHI participants primarily plans to enroll in public four-year undergraduate degree programs at out of-state public institutions of higher education. When these current high school students exhibit a preference for private colleges and universities among NHI alumni from the class of 2022, the top four institutions where they ultimately matriculated in the fall 2022 semester were the University of St. Thomas, Cornell University, Rice University, and St. Mary's University.

- Most 10th and 11th grade participants indicated that the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted their undergraduate planning during their high school journey, and this disruption has resulted in (1) an increased level of interest than previous NHI cohort in attending local two-year degree programs and in-state public universities immediately after high school graduation, and (2) greater concerns about the costs of undergraduate degrees being feasible if they choose to attend a private institution of higher education far away from where they graduated from high school.

Villescas' report also included some findings from previous years' participants, many of whom crossed over from Great Debate programs to the LDZ and CWS programs that complete NHI's three-year high school leadership series.

As the report reads:

After exploring a series of supplementary questions that were circulated to the 2020 cohort regarding virtual training formats, feedback on the GDx, LDZx, and CWSx online models of engagement in 2021, and attitudes about virtual environments being perpetuated by their local school systems throughout both academic years (i.e. 2019-2020 and 2020-2021), this set of annual surveys continued to explore findings related to shifting attitudes about the prioritization of local public two-year and out-of-state public four-year undergraduate degree programs by NHI alumni from the classes of 2021 and 2022. Additionally, NHI participant and alumni surveys were designed to continue to explore how COVID-19 impacted their perceptions about the future.

This Year 2 report continued to explore:

- (1) The college admissions process
- (2) The financial aid process
- (3) Undergraduate planning
- (4) Becoming an elected official after the completion of their academic journeys
- (5) Starting an enterprise within the next ten years.

Participants from each 2022 NHI program explored aspects of these domains, and their responses regarding the impact of the pandemic revealed the following:

College Admissions

Approximately two-thirds (66%) of recent NHI alumni that graduated during the spring or summer of 2022 asserted that their previous NHI training had prepared them for the college admissions process that they encountered.

Financial Aid

Almost half (53.5%) of recent NHI alumni that graduated during the spring or summer of 2022 asserted that their previous NHI training had prepared them for the financial aid process that they encountered.

Undergraduate Admissions

More than half of currently-enrolled 10th and 11th grade high school students who participated in the LDZ/LDZx (i.e., 53.9% of Dionisio “Dennis” Chavez New Mexico LDZ, 50% Colorado LDZ, 46.3% of American LDZ, and 72.8% of Texas LDZ participants) believe that the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted their undergraduate planning during their high school years. When NHI alumni from the class of 2022 that had previously participated in the Great Debate/GDx, LDZ/LDZx, and/or CWS were asked whether their undergraduate planning was impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic during their senior year, approximately two-thirds (i.e., 66.6%) asserted that it had made a high impact during this critical phase in high school. Only 2.6% of this cohort, down from 15.1% for the class of 2021, asserted that the pandemic had not impacted their planning for undergraduate studies.

Becoming an Elected Official in the Future

Of the six-day Great Debaters who attended the Texas Star and the California Sol Great Debate, 9.6% and 11.7% of these ninth-grade participants plan to become elected officials before 2032. Among the 10th and 11th grade LDZ/LDZx participants who will graduate in 2023 and 2024, 34.6% of Dionisio “Dennis” Chavez New Mexico LDZ, 16.7% of Colorado LDZ, 27.3% of Texas LDZ, and 19.5% of American LDZ participants asserted that they plan to become elected officials within the next ten years. Among the International CWS and Texas CWS, 13.9% and 7.9% plan to become elected officials. For members of the class of 2022, 6.7% plan to become elected officials by 2032.

Becoming an Entrepreneur in the Future

Of the six-day Great Debaters, 30.8% of Texas Star Great Debate and 36.7% of California Sol Great Debate participants plan to launch a new enterprise by 2032. Among the 10th and 11th grade LDZ/LDZx participants who will graduate in 2023 and 2024, 46.4% of Colorado LDZ, 50% of American LDZ, 43.4% of Texas LDZ, and 66.7% of LDZx participants will own their own businesses within the next ten years. Among the International CWS and Texas CWS, 51.3% and 26.5% plan to own their own businesses. For members of the class of 2022, 26.7% plan to attempt to start new businesses before the completion of their undergraduate degrees, and 40% plan to own their own businesses by 2032.
